the present volume draws on the experience of the workshop held in germany in late 2018 to combine the specialisations of the two linguistic research teams of the two partner universities sun yat sen university in china and chemnitz university of technology in germany it combines more theoretical approaches by experienced scholars and case studies by young researchers on topics and texts on current chinese developments the contributions can also serve as a general model for open and critical international and intercultural academic discourse throughout its history the christian church has had a troubled relationship with the arts whether literature poetry music visual arts or other forms of artistic expression this volume is not designed to resolve the issues but it is designed to present a number of different statements about various dimensions of the arts in their relationship to the bible the bible is the document that stands behind the christian church as an inspiration to it and to its arts as a result we have divided this volume into six parts perspectives on the arts culture and art visual enactments contemporary interpretations music and the bible and literature many of the issues that the history of the interaction of the arts and the bible within the christian church has uncovered are insightfully and artfully addressed by this book the wide range of contributors runs the gamut from practicing artists of various media to scholars within varied academic fields modern scholarship tends to understand paul s use of creation language □□□□□ in rom 8 18 23 as part of a commentary on the state of sub human creation this misguided position warrants an inquiry into the state of lexical study in new testament scholarship as a result fewster articulates a theory of lexical monosemy cast in the framework of systemic functional linguistics the model is applied to paul s use of □□□□□ through a robust corpus analysis and investigation into the word s role within the paragraph □□□□□ contributes to the cohesive structure of rom 8 18 23 and contra the majority of interpreters functions as a metaphor for the human body functional grammar fg as set out by simon dik is the ambitious combination of a functionalist approach to the study of language with a consistent formalization of the underlying structures which it recognizes as relevant the present volume represents the attempts made within the fg framework to expand the theory so as to cover a wider empirical domain than is usual for highly formalized linguistic theories namely that of written and spoken discourse while retaining its methodological precision the book covers an array of phenomena both from monologue and from dialogue material relating to discourse structure speaker aims and goals action theory the flow of information illocutionary force modality etc the central question underlying most of the contributions concerns the relation between and the division of labour between the existing grammatical module of fg on the one hand and a discourse or pragmatic module capable of handling such discourse phenomena on the other what emerges are new proposals for the formal treatment of for instance illocutionary force and the informational status of constituents many of the data discussed are from real language rather than being invented and samples from various languages other than english spanish polish latin french are examined and used as illustrations of the theoretical problem to be solved readership theoretical linguists and discourse and conversation analysts
